

Jessica Coker

Jessica Coker is a native of Spartanburg County. She graduated from Clemson with a Bachelor's in Accounting and a Masters of Professional Accountancy in Taxation. After school, she came back to her hometown where she is currently self-employed as a CPA. She has roughly 20 years of professional experience serving individuals and small businesses.

Coker is an advocate for small business and works daily to help taxpayers keep the most of their money. The financial skillset she possesses has proven to be beneficial in her new role.

Jessica Coker had never been involved in politics before deciding to run for County Council in 2020. She prayed hard about running and felt in her heart it was an opportunity for her to give back to the community that has given so much to her.

So far, Coker loves the work that comes with her position and finds it rewarding. She has received overwhelming support from residents in her district.

In her free time, Coker enjoys reading, gardening, and spending time with her family. She considers herself a forever-learner and, above all else, a child of God.
